CONTEMPORARY HISTORY      From the sky up

From the sky high

A secret plan reveals that the Americans were prepared to destroy a large part of the German population with poison gas later in the war. * *

23.10.1988, 13.00 • from THE SPIEGEL 43/1988

For four days, the American merchant ship "John Harvey" was located in the port of the southern Italian city of Bari, and the cargo was still not unloaded.

Neither the captain nor the crew knew what dangerous cargo they had taken on board in the American Baltimore, 5,700 nautical miles away. Only seven soldiers, at their head, First Lieutenant Howard Beckström, knew about details.

On the second of December 1943, German Ju-88 bombers attacked the piers in Bari for 20 minutes. They sank 17 ships and damaged eight severely. The 10617 gross tons of "John Harvey" also caught fire and exploded.

Shortly afterwards, injured people with strange symptoms were sent to the hospitals: they had skin damage, eye pain, swollen glands, extremely low blood pressure and a strongly increased pulse rate. The doctors typed in a special type of skin inflammation - a serious misdiagnosis.

In the US freighter, what Beckström, who was killed in the attack, had had to conceal was 540 tons of mustard gas on instructions from above. More than 1,000 soldiers and civilians were killed in the swaths of the highly toxic war material. The Allies stated "combustion," "bronchitis" or "lung complications" as causes of death.

To this day, the background of the "Catastrophe of Bari," says the historian and poison gas expert Günther Gellermann, remained a closely kept secret. ...

From Italy and England, thousands of aircraft were to gas "in a 15-day operation" (30 German cities with mustard gas and or the more toxic phosgene, all important industrial and manufacturing plants and thus end the Second World War in Europe with a blow.

Under point 4 of the plan ("Possible Results of the Attack"), US specialists from the Chemical War Management Department calculated how many people would be "directly affected" ie. Killed , 5.6 million. Another twelve million "would be indirectly exposed to the proposed attack".

Hitler's intelligence services had apparently learned of the American preparations, even if only fragmentary. They knew that since the beginning of 1943, weapons were shipped to West and North Africa and stored there - not too far from southern Italy.

The gases Phosgene and mustard gas were first used in the First World War in 1915 and 1917 on the West Front - by the Germans (invented by a Jewish Chemist Fritz Haber). this gas, which is also called "Lost" after the names of the inventors Lommel and Steinkopff, is a skin poison, Phosgene attacks the lungs. "The breath," a doctor describes the effect, "becomes ever shorter and more shocking until death occurs through suffocation."

When Peace was made in Versailles in 1919 after the First World War, the victorious powers prohibited the loser from the manufacture and import of "suffocating, poisonous or similar gases as well as all such liquids, substances." The instruction was never controlled, soon production in Germany was again in full speed.

The international agreement "on the prohibition of the war operation" of chemical and bacteriological substances ("Geneva Protocol") was also only half-heartedly signed six years later. The US promoted the violation of such weapons, but they did not ratify the agreement at the time.

American chemists, as did German manufacturers, accelerated gas production and the military thought up new strategies. General Amos Fries, then head of the "Chemical Warfare Service," praised the "art of perfection .. of poisonous gas bombs." He prophesied that the "war of the future" will be won by "those who will make the widest use of the chemical weapon" - from the sky high, bombed or sprayed.

Even Hitler, when in 1918 himself victim of a British gas attack ("To me it was dark, the eyes were transformed into glowing coals"),

The Americans and their allies, however, were long prepared .. "I hope," President Roosevelt said, "that we will never be forced to do so. I categorically notice that under no circumstances do we resort to the use of such weapons as long as the enemy does not.

For all 30 cities, chosen by the US Department of Defense and by intelligence agents as "key objectives," there were precise descriptions of those districts that were "recommended" as an object of attack - in Hamburg, for example, there were three: "I. This goal includes the city center with an area "from a square mile ... almost 200000 persons » , the business and "" storage center. Adjacent to the south the port along the " Elbe", including the submarine shipyards. "" II. This goal includes the densely populated residential area "east of the Altona railway station," north of the Elbe and the park belt around the "-downtown", south of Eimsbüttel, the most densely populated district. 190,000 people live in this one and a half "" square miles of destination. III. This goal includes the densely populated "" residential areas in the northeast of the city. 140,000 people live in this one and a half "" square miles of destination. »

Five cities - Munich, Augsburg, Nuremberg, Stuttgart and Karlsruhe - were to be served by the Italian US base Foggia, about 100 kilometres north of Bari. All others - among them Berlin, Cologne, Düsseldorf, Leipzig and Dresden - from London.

Depending on the climatic conditions, the easily volatile phosgene or the heavier gas would have been dropped. The planners used at least "100 aircraft with 4000 bombs a 100 pound (Lost)" or "600 bombs a 1000 pounds " to poison "a square mile.

America's chemical factories had produced enough war materials, and towards the end of the war, 140,000 tons were stored in the arsenals. But at that time there were not enough bombers ready.

In an attack in March 1944, however, the American Air Force could have completed 63 percent of the "target programme,". It seems possible that the British would have flown along if necessary. In April 1944, the Royal Air Force 5630 bombers were ready, 45 more than the American allies. England's Prime Minister Winston Churchill pursued similar goals as Roosevelt ,on the British side, "very seriously, there was a thought of "serious intentions about a gas operation against Germany" (Gellermann). So Churchill said on the 6th of May and 6 On July 1944, to his chief of staff, General Hastings Lionel Ismay, including: "I hope that a cold-blooded assessment "may be made about whether it would be more favourable for us to use poison gas . If we do this, it should be "" one hundred percent. »

Churchill demanded that "the matter be dealt with in the meantime by reasonable people" - not by "uniformed defeatists who now and then run along the way".

However, his military held back. "So far," they told the head of government that the "morality of the German population had not been broken by our air strikes," the "advantage of surprise" could "therefore only be of a short duration." In addition, they argued, the "population has good gas protection equipment."

A statistic from the First World War proves that gas masks can be life-saving in Lost or Phosgen iattacks. While at first, "when the gas hit unprepared opponents" (as the Kiel chemist Ulrich Müller), there were "lethal losses of up to 35 percent", they fell to just under two percent at the end - thanks to the protective measures.

But Germany was almost defenceless, contrary to the assessment of the London general. There were neither sirens for gas alarm nor enough air raid shelters. About 65 percent of all civilians in the Reich territory, Gellermann calculates, "do not have gas masks."

The situation was the worst for young girls and boys up to three years. They were supposed to be equipped with special, all-round sealed gas beds and gas pieces made of rubber, according to Hitler's ideas. But because there was neither enough rubber nor the Buna substitute, almost 90 percent of children were unprotected.

"The opening of a gas war by the Allies at this time," concedes Gellermann, "would have led to a catastrophe and probably forced Germany to lay down their weapons within a very short time."

Bari Italy Luftwaffe attacks the USS John Harvey laden with 540 tons of Mustard Gas 2nd December 1943.

What remained secret to them, however, was the condition of the many wounded in the military hospital of Bari. They showed a red, inflamed skin with blisters as big as balloons and eyelids that were so swollen that they could not see anything. The medical staff was puzzled, especially when a few days later patients who were previously in a reasonable condition suddenly began to die. The rumor spread that the Luftwaffe would have dropped bombs with chemical content, but in reality two thousand of those bombs had been in the hold of the American cargo ship 'John Harvey' that had been detonated by a direct hit.

It was the American Lt. Col. Stewart Francis Alexander (1914-1991) who first concluded that this was exposure to mustard gas. He investigated exactly where the victims were and determined that this was within a radius of several hundred meters around the 'John Harvey'. When he had divers inspected the vicinity of the shipwreck, those fragments of a type 100-pounder discovered that was intended for chemical warfare within the US Air Force. On 11 December Alexander presented his report, which immediately received the stamp top secret. The Allied High Command wanted to hide the presence of chemical weapons in the vicinity of the battlefield both from the home front and the enemy.

Churchill Wanted to "Drench" Masses of German Civilians with Poison Gas.

In a secret wartime memorandum, Winston Churchill told his advisers that he wanted to "drench" Germany with poison gas. Churchill's July 1944 memo to his chief of staff Gen. Hastings Ismay was reproduced in the August-September 1985 issue of American Heritage magazine. "I want you to think very seriously over this question of poison gas," the four-page note began. Britain's wartime leader continued: "It is absurd to consider morality on this topic when everybody used it [gas] in the last war without a word of complaint from the moralists or the Church.

Mustard Gas.

It was the brainchild of Fritz Haber, a German Jewish chemist who would become known as the "father of chemical warfare." There's no more controversial or paradoxical figure in chemistry. Professor Fritz Haber in Berlin in 1919.

After the Allies learned to defend against chlorine gas with masks and handkerchiefs soaked in solutions, Haber developed another gas to circumvent those defenses. Nitrogen mustard was absorbed through the skin. Masks were useless, and even full clothing didn't protect against it. Symptoms could appear 10 or more hours after exposure. And they were horrifying. Incurable blisters erupted on the skin. Soldiers who inhaled it took weeks to die painfully, coughing up blood. With its garlicky smell and yellow pallor, "mustard gas" became infamous to troops as the "king of the war gases."

After the war, Haber focused his research on pesticides. But when the Nazis took power in the 1930s, anti-Jewish sentiment grew. In early 1933, Haber was barred from entering his lab. The porter told him, "the Jew Haber is not allowed here." Haber fled the country. He died of a heart attack in 1934 in Switzerland.

Churchill and Anthrax..

Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard, who had spent the First World War developing more effective poison gases, and who in 1942 had been commissioned by Winston Churchill to develop an Anthrax bomb to be used on Germany, which would have killed every living thing in Germany. Conant was unable to perfect the bomb before Germany surrendered, otherwise he would have had another line to add to his resume.

February 13/14 1945: Holocaust over Dresden, known as the Florence of the North. Dresden was a hospital city for wounded soldiers. Not one military unit, not one anti-aircraft battery was deployed in the city. Together with the 600.000 refugees from Breslau, Dresden was filled with nearly 1.2 million people. Churchill had asked for "suggestions how to blaze 600.000 refugees". He wasn't interested how to target military installations 60 miles outside of Dresden. More than 700.000 phosphorus bombs were dropped on 1.2 million people. One bomb for every 2 people. The temperature in the centre of the city reached 1600 o centigrade. More than 260.000 bodies and residues of bodies were counted. But those who perished in the centre of the city can't be traced. Appr. 500.000 children, women, the elderly, wounded soldiers and the animals of the zoo were murdered in one night.

<http://www.der-stuermer.org/inden.htm>

From 13 to 15 February 1945, British (and some American) heavy bombers dropped 2,400 tons of high explosives and 1,500 tons of incendiary bombs onto the ancient cathedral city of Dresden. In just a few hours, around 25,000 to 35,000 civilians were blown up or incinerated ... Churchill wrote that he wanted "absolutely devastating, exterminating attacks by very heavy bombers from this country upon the Nazi homeland". In another letter he called it "terror bombing". His aim was to demoralise the Germans to catalyse regime change ... Records show that the first intentional "area bombing" of civilians in the Second World War took place at Monchengladbach on 11 May 1940 at Churchill's orders ...

Air Raid on Dresden Killed More Than 300,000 .

One British sergeant said,

"Reports from Dresden police that 300,000 died as a result of the bombing didn't include deaths among 1,000,000 evacuees from the Breslau area trying to escape from the Russians. There were no records on them."

Some twenty years after World War II, the Jews began to fear that scholars might focus on the terrible massacres of women and children during that war by armies directed by the Jews. The incineration of thousands of families by mass fire-bombings of the cities of Cologne, Hamburg, Berlin, Dresden and other European cultural centers; the firestorms which killed many thousands of families in Tokyo; as well as the nuclear holocausts unleashed on civilian populations at Hiroshima and Nagasaki in the last days of the Japanese War, when the Imperial Staff was already suing for peace (the Jews did not want to lose this opportunity to test their new Jewish H-Bomb on human targets); these and their numerous other war crimes, began to concern the Jews.

Their guilt was inescapable; it seemed a mere matter of time until their crimes would call down retribution on their heads. To forestall this possibility, the Jews began a furious campaign of their own; a highly synchronized and coordinated worldwide campaign publicizing their new myth, the "Holocaust", in which six million Jews were said to have been burned.

Total vernichtet bzw. schwer beschädigt wurden 13 441 Wohngebäude, das sind 36% aller Wohngebäude in Dresden.

Weiter wurden total brennend bzw. schwer beschädigt, daß sie nicht mehr benutzt werden können:

30 Banken	647 Geschäftshäuser
36 Versicherungsgebäude	2 Museen
31 Waren- und Kaufhäuser	19 Kirchen
32 größere Hotels	6 Kapellen
25 größere Gaststätten	22 Krankenanstalten
75 Verwaltungsgebäude	72 Schulen
6 Theater	5 Konsulate, darunter das Spanische und Schweizer Konsulat
18 Lichtspielhäuser

Im Kühlhaus wurden nur 180 Paß (zu je 50 Kg) vernichtet, alle anderen Bestände wurden gerettet.

Bis zum 20.3.45 abends wurden 202 040 Tote, überwiegend Frauen und Kinder geborgen.

Es ist damit zu rechnen, daß die Zahl auf 250 000 Tote ansteigen wird. Von den Toten konnten nur annähernd 30% identifiziert werden.

Die Ordnungspolizei Dresden (Schutzpolizei) hat 75 Tote, 276 Verwundete, die zum großen Teil zu den Toten gerechnet werden müssen, zu verzeichnen. Da der Abtransport der Toten nicht rechtzeitig und rasch von staten gehen konnte, wurden 68 650 Gefallene eingelagert, die Asche auf einen Friedhof beigesetzt.

Da die Gerüchte die Wirklichkeit weit übertreffen, kann von den tatsächlichen Zahlen offen Gebrauch gemacht werden.

Die Verluste und Schäden sind schwer genug.

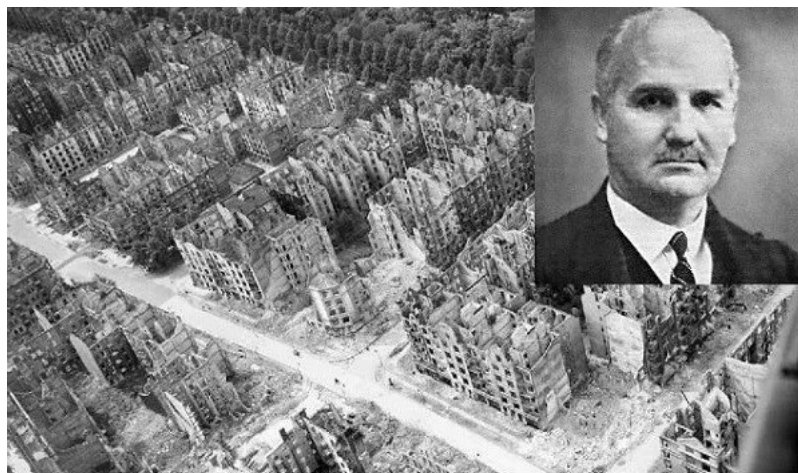

Die ganze Schwere des Angriffs liegt darin, daß dieser Umfang der Schäden in wenigen Stunden hervorgerufen wurde.

Dresden police reports on March 22, 1945 that until March 20th 202.040 bodies, mostly women and children, were found and that approx 250.000 died. Only 30% of victims could be identified. more than 250,000 Dresden natives, & 300,000 refugees from East who were in the city.

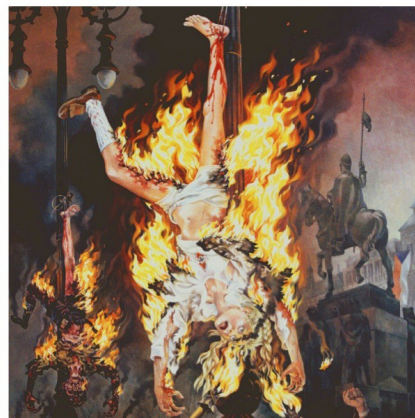

After the war the Labour Minister, Richard Crossman described the bombing of Dresden as "the worst massacre in the history of the world" and wrote: "The devastation of Dresden in February, 1945, was one of those crimes against humanity whose authors would have been arraigned at Nuremberg if that court had not been perverted."

It was said Lindemann(Jewish) wielded more influence over Churchill (Jewish)than any other civilian adviser.

The Red Army's atrocities against women in Dresden in the spring of 1945, a city that had already suffered heavily from Allied bombing, were carried out in a sickeningly systematic manner. 'In the house next to ours, Soviet troops went in and pulled the women on to the street, had their mattresses pulled out and raped the women,' recalled one inhabitant, John Noble. 'The men had to watch, and then the men were shot. Right at the end of the street, a woman was tied to a wagon wheel and terribly misused. 'Of course, you had the feeling that you wanted to stop it, but there was no possibility to do that.' Women going to and from work past Red Army pickets were routinely raped. The historian Chris Bellamy believes that although there are no surviving written records to prove it, 'the hideous spectre of multiple rape was not only condoned, but, we can be pretty sure, legally sanctioned by the political officers speaking for the Soviet government'. Nor is it true that rape was mainly carried out by reserve units following behind the front-line troops. The Russian war correspondent Vassily Grossman was embedded with the elite front-line Eighth Guards Army which committed rape, as did at least one of his own war correspondent colleagues. As well as the estimated two million rapes in Germany, there were between 70,000 and 100,000 in Vienna and anywhere from 50,000 to 200,000 in Hungary, as well as thousands in Romania and Bulgaria, which had been pro-Nazi, but also in Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, which had not been. <http://www.whale.to/b/stalin8.html>

George W Armstrong

We must give Hitler credit for waging it according to the rules of civilized warfare. It was not Hitler who initiated the campaign of bombing women and children, but it was the British and ourselves. It was not Hitler who used poison gas, but us at Hiroshima. It was not Hitler who attacked ships in neutral ports, but the British at Oran. No effort was made during the war to assassinate Roosevelt or Churchill, but two attacks were made upon the life of Hitler. It is not saying much for Hitler to say that he was a better man than Roosevelt, Churchill or Stalin; nor is it saying much for the Germans to observe that they are better than the Russians and the Jews.P107

'THE JEWISH HELL BOMB ' The Secret History Of The Atomic Bomb by Eustace C. Mullins

"But, Mr. Secretary," said Alger Hiss, "no one can ignore the terrible power of this weapon."

"Nevertheless," said Stettinius, "our entire postwar program depends on terrifying the world with the atomic bomb." "To accomplish that goal," said John Foster Dulles, "you will need a very good tally. I should say a million." "Yes," replied Stettinius, "we are hoping for a million tally in Japan. But if they surrender, we won't have anything." "Then you have to keep them in the war until the bomb is ready," said John Foster Dulles. "That is no problem. Unconditional surrender." "They won't agree to that," said Stettinius. "They are sworn to protect the Emperor." "Exactly," said John Foster Dulles. "Keep Japan in the war another three months, and we can use the bomb on their cities; we will end this war with the naked fear of all the peoples of the world, who will then bow to our will." Edward Stettinius Jr. was the son of a J.P. Morgan partner who had been the world's largest munitions dealer in the First World War. He had been named by J.P. Morgan to oversee all purchases of munitions by both France and England in the United States throughout the war. John Foster Dulles was also an accomplished warmonger. In 1933, he and his brother Allen had rushed to Cologne to meet with Adolf Hitler and guaranteed him the funds to maintain the Nazi regime. The Dulles brothers were representing their clients, Kuhn Loeb Co., and the Rothschilds. Alger Hiss was the golden prince of the communist elite in the United States. When he was chosen as head of the prestigious Carnegie Endowment for International Peace after World War II, his nomination was seconded by John Foster Dulles. Hiss was later sent to prison for perjury for lying about his exploits as a Soviet espionage agent. This secret meeting in the Garden Room was actually the first military strategy session of the United Nations, because it was dedicated to its mission of exploding the world's first atomic weapon on a living population. It also forecast the entire strategy of the Cold War, which lasted forty-three years, cost American taxpayers five trillion dollars, and accomplished exactly nothing, as it was intended to do. Thus we see that the New World Order has based its entire strategy on the agony of the hundreds of thousands of civilians burned alive at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, including many thousands of children sitting in their schoolrooms. These leaders had learned from their master, Josef Stalin, that no one can rule without mass terrorism, which in turn required mass murder. As Senator Vandenberg, leader of the Republican loyal opposition, was to say (as quoted in American Heritage magazine, August 1977), "We have got to scare the hell out of 'em."

General Curtis LeMay, who had pioneered precision bombing of Germany and Japan (and who later headed the Strategic Air Command and served as Air Force chief of staff), put it most succinctly: "The atomic bomb had nothing to do with the end of the war."

"In April, 1939 (four months before the outbreak of war), Ambassador William C, Bullitt, whom I had known for twenty years, called me to the American Embassy in Paris. The American Ambassador told me that war had been decided upon. He did not say, nor did I ask, by whom. He let me infer it... When I said that in the end Germany would be driven into the arms of Soviet Russia and Bolshevism, the Ambassador replied: "What of it? There will not be enough Germans left when the war is over worth Bolshevising."

~Karl Von Wiegand, April 23rd, 1944, Chicago Herald American.

Great Britain also began to violate the essential rule of civilized warfare that hostilities must be limited to the combatant forces. On May 11, 1940, British bombers began to attack the industrial areas of Germany. The British government adopted a new definition of military objectives so that this term included any building which in any way contributed, directly or indirectly, to the war effort of the enemy. On December 16, 1940, a moonlight raid by 134 British planes took place on Mannheim designed “to concentrate the maximum amount of damage in the center of the town.” Great Britain abandoned all pretense of attacking military, industrial or any other particular target with this raid.

Operation Catapult - Attack on the French Fleet – Mers-el-Kébir 3rd July 1940 - Oran

A surprising aspect of the British attack on the French fleet is that low-flying British airplanes repeatedly machine-gunned masses of French sailors as they struggled in the water. It is an event still remembered with great bitterness in France. This British war crime was soon followed by the assassination of French Adm. Francois Darlan by British agents in Algiers.

Great Britain and its Allies engaged in uncivilized warfare and the mass murder, rape and ethnic cleansing of German civilians after the end of World War II. The British and Allied postwar treatment of Germany is surely one of the most brutal, criminal and unreported tragedies in world history.

Britain’s Uncivilized Warfare In addition to ignoring all German peace efforts, Winston Churchill and other leaders of Great Britain began to conduct a war of unprecedented violence. On July 3, 1940, a British fleet attacked and destroyed much of the French fleet at Oran in southwestern Algeria to prevent it from falling into German hands.

Dr Andrew Moulden discovered the clear link between vaccines and a wide variety of serious health conditions including autism, which he shows is caused by cranial mini-strokes, as evidenced by abnormal facial features clearly visible after vaccination. The best source of info on the web about his research is the 11 part video, one part of which is below. He had collected over 5000 photographs from parents in preparation for a class action lawsuit against vaccine makers. He died on Nov 14, 2013, before the lawsuit could move forward.

Through my extensive research and my work throughout the years, I have discovered that vaccinations are causing impaired blood flow (ischemia) to brain and body from clinically silent to death. These are strokes – across the board for all of us. I have reason to believe that all are being affected and all vaccinations ARE causing the overwhelming rise in autism, specific learning disabilities, attention deficit disorders, sudden infant death, gulf war syndrome, dementia, seizure disorders, some cancers it would appear, and much much more.

Our records indicate that you received a vaccine from us on Sunday March 28th, 2021. During our audit process on that day, it came to our attention that you may not have received the vaccine and you may have received Saline instead. Saline is not harmful but will not provide protection from COVID-19.

Mackenzie Health is committed to being open and transparent with all our patients and we sincerely apologize for this happening.

To ensure you receive proper vaccination, we will need to conduct an antibody blood test that can help detect if you received the Pfizer vaccine. The antibody test needs to be conducted two weeks after receiving the injection for the antibodies in your system to be detected properly. We are currently working with our third-party lab partner to facilitate your antibody test. We will be calling you back by this week to confirm when a mobile team from the lab can come to your home to draw your blood. Or if you prefer, we can arrange for you to visit a lab near you to take the test. We will work with you to make sure it works for your schedule.

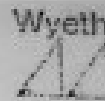

Once we receive the antibody test results, we will let you know as soon as possible whether you need to come back to receive the COVID-19 vaccine. If you do need to come back, we will set you up with a new appointment right away.

We will also honour your second dose appointment as it was originally scheduled so your full vaccination is not delayed.

Again, we sincerely apologize for this occurrence.

After the reporting of the SID cases in Tennessee, we discussed the merits of limiting distribution of a large number of vials from a single lot to a single state, county or city health department and obtained agreement from the senior management staff to proceed with such a plan.

This subject has been discussed with Charlie Young and the following guidelines were developed by PSRD. I would appreciate your comments concerning this procedure and the advisability of formalizing these guidelines.

Interim Measures in Effect

1. Allocation of stock to Distribution Centers is designated by lot number in a manner designed to leave the maximum variety of lot numbers in Great Valley and Marietta to service substantial orders.
2. Managers in D.C.'s carrying average inventories of over 3000 packages (approximate) have been requested to advise PSRD of any orders exceeding 2000 vials. PSRD will then designate shipment by lot number, furnishing additional stock as needed.

Permanent Policy Proposal

1. A D.C. will not fill any order with stock exceeding 2000 packages of one lot number before clearing with PSRD.
2. When additional stock is needed for compliance, PSRD will make necessary arrangements.
3. In the event that the national inventory does not permit compliance, PSRD will clear exception with Marietta management, or make arrangements for split delivery.

Facts About Fluoride

So, what are some of the facts about fluoride? According to the handbook, Clinical Toxicology of Commercial Products, fluoride is more poisonous than lead and just slightly less poisonous than arsenic. It is a cumulative poison that accumulates in bone over the years. According to the Physicians Desk Reference, "in hypersensitive individuals, fluorides occasionally cause skin eruptions such as atopic dermatitis, eczema, or urticaria. Gastric distress, headache, and weakness have also been reported. These hypersensitive reactions usually disappear promptly after discontinuation of the fluoride."

LIKE THE HEN HOUSE

SODIUM FLUORIDE, A NEW INSECTICIDE THAT EX-TERMINATES AT ONCE.

By Frank C. Rice
City Superintendent, Clemson College, S. C.

There is no error for who-infestpoultry houses or busy chickens, a few hours' work with whitewash, insecticide and dusting powder will kill these parasites and improve things generally. Following are a reliable suggestions for this.

WHITING detracts so much from the appearance of a poultry house or as dark, dirty walls covered with cobwebs and dirt. The place inviting to parasites and to the chickens is their home. Since the grain fed poultry is waste of the litter on the floor of the city house, we have another reason why the inside of the house should be bright and sanitary. The few waste grains thrown in the litter in a dark house, a nest of white on the walls will quickly change dark house into an attractive one for the inmates.

SINGLE-COMB BUFF LEGHORNS

The egg machines—the Leghorns—are always in demand, not only with those who measure the worth of a flock of fowls by the number of eggs produced, but also with the fansies. They are bred in several colors, but the white is the most popular.
This is due, perhaps, because it is easier to breed white fowls than colored ones. To the farmer, however, the Single-Comb Buff Leghorn makes a strong appeal. It is possessed of most lasting, except the White, which recommends itself to the purely commercial farmer.

Buff Leghorns were originated in England. Mrs. Lister Key was most active in their production, and, generally speaking, the fowls are the result of a cross between White Leghorns and Buff Cochons. Mrs. Key claims that certain yellow fowls from Denmark also entered into their ancestry. Early in the 18th Buff Leghorns were introduced into the United States and to this day are popular.

Mary Green, the little daughter of Joseph Beards, who has been visiting in Miami, has returned to the village. W. Douglas, who has been visiting in this city for a few days, left Wednesday for Miami.

Mrs. W. N. Davis left Thursday for Miami on route to Eugene, Ore., where she will visit with her sister.

Miss Margaret Thompson left Wednesday for Miami, where she will visit with relatives and friends.

J. Frank Roberts left Wednesday for Miami on route to a visit of some days in the city.

Dr. R. H. Hays, with his wife and son, will be in Miami Monday morning. Dr. Hays is now living in Port Pine, but will come to Miami soon to take the place of Dr. J. E. Cannon, Jr., who has been in this city for thirteen or fourteen years, and for a good part of that time was the only doctor between West Palm Beach and Fort Lauderdale. Dr. Cannon has taken up his new work and is waiting his call, which he expects sometime next.

Mr. Stubbard and others left Miami for the Everglades Friday morning.
Charles Klodes and family, who have been visiting relatives in Council Bluffs for a few weeks past, arrived on Friday night.

The Well Poisoners ,Bubonic Plague 14th Century and the JEWS.

On 18 October Belieta was put to the question, and when it was over she confessed that Provenzal had given her, some poison, about as much as a large nut, to put in springs so that people using the water would fall sick and die. And she took the poison and did as she was told. Asked whether any JEW knew about the poisoning she says that Geney the Jewess and Jocet of La Tour knew about it very well. P215

Jewish Banker Andrew W Mellon introduces Fluoridation in America.

It was Ewing, as chief of the PHS, who officially gave the green light to fluoridation only five years after the initiation of the 10 to 15-year experiments in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and Newburgh, New York. At that time the permanent teeth of children born under fluoridation had not yet erupted, and therefore no reliable scientific conclusions concerning its benefits could possibly have been reached. Prior to Ewing's tenure of office in the federal government, Andrew Mellon, the founder of ALCOA, had been the U.S. Treasurer. The PHS was then in the Department of the Treasury. One can only speculate concerning Mr. Mellon's role as protector of his company. P313
